COUNTRY PROFILE

In successive waves over four decades, stateless Rohingya refugees have been fleeing to Bangladesh from Rakhine State, Myanmar, where they have suffered systematic, ongoing persecution. Since August 2017, an estimated 745,000 refugees have arrived in Cox's Bazar, Bangladesh, bringing the total number to more than 900,000. The displacement marks the latest stage in one of the world's most complex ongoing human rights crises.

Having been stripped of citizenship in Myanmar, the Rohingya have experienced decades of movement restrictions, heavy constraints on access to livelihoods and basic services, and denial of documentation in their areas of origin in northern Rakhine. This left the population acutely vulnerable even prior to displacement: by 2016, malnutrition rates in northern Rakhine were already at emergency levels, while the majority of the population was illiterate. In the military crackdown driving the displacement of August 2017, many Rohingya were forced to draw down their existing resources as they fled. Further, with credible reports of widespread human rights violations during displacement, many have arrived in Bangladesh with acute psychosocial and protection needs.

While they have found safe haven from persecution in Bangladesh, the Rohingya have faced new constraints on building self-reliant and dignified lives. Refugees are currently confined to 34 crowded spontaneous settlements, with limited freedom of movement, heavily restricted access to livelihoods and cash, and no provision of formal education. As a consequence, they remain in a highly precarious situation, dependent on humanitarian assistance to cover their basic needs, and vulnerable to natural disasters, trafficking, and the activities of criminal groups. At the same time, Cox's Bazar District is among the most deprived areas of Bangladesh. The local community have expressed concerns that the refugee influx may have exacerbated the existing burden of unemployment and difficulties accessing essential services in the region, as well as an overall lack of attention towards their needs. In areas where refugees and host communities live side by side, many are now accessing the same services and depend on the same labour markets, creating potential sources of tension as well as common vulnerabilities to hazards and shocks.

Since September 2017, IMPACT's REACH Initiative has been deployed to Bangladesh to help meet the information needs of humanitarian actors operating in Cox's Bazar District and build a better understanding of the needs of displaced and host populations. Supported by assistance from ECHO, UNICEF, and UNHCR, REACH is carrying out the following activities:

- Joint multi-sector needs assessment (MSNA): in collaboration with the inter-sector coordination group (ISCG), REACH works to implement comprehensive MSNAs of both refugee and host community populations to provide a rigorous evidence base for the humanitarian response planning process in line with the commitments of the Grand Bargain. As the process enters its second year, REACH is seeking to build on the institutional platform established in 2019 to strengthen gender and vulnerability analysis, better incorporate qualitative data, and better close feedback loops by involving affected populations in research design, data collection, and dissemination.
- Integrated support to the Cox's Bazar WASH sector: Since 2017, REACH has been providing a package of assessment, monitoring, and analysis to support to the WASH sector at all points in the humanitarian programme cycle. Activities have ranged from regular household assessments, mapping and monitoring of almost 100,000 infrastructure points, and carrying out targeted thematic assessments on issues such as menstrual hygiene management. Moving into 2020, REACH will be working to build Sector and local partner capacity to implement assessments autonomously, while continuing to focus on providing rigorous evidence on core WASH needs and vulnerabilities.
- Support to disaster preparedness: REACH's GIS specialists have supported the ISCG's Natural Hazard Risk Assessment Task Force to produce hazard and risk maps identifying areas of refugee settlements at greater risk of natural hazards such as landslides and flooding. This work has been critical in ensuring site managers and planners have the information they need to mitigate the risks posed to refugees by the monsoon and cyclone season.
- In-depth thematic assessments: REACH works regularly with key sector working groups to implement thematic assessments in response to identified information needs. In 2019, this has included periodic monitoring of safety and access to services for the protection sector, a Joint Education Needs Assessment, and an ongoing Child Protection Needs Assessment.
